NETZ Partnership for Development and Justice (short: NETZ) is a non-governmental charitable organisation registered in Germany and Bangladesh. Since its inception in 1989, NETZ, in cooperation with its local partners, has been advocating for the self-determination of the people of Bangladesh in areas such as climate-resilient livelihoods, inclusive quality education and equal human rights. The organisation places a specific emphasis on promoting and protecting the rights of marginalised groups while addressing the structural causes of poverty and injustice.

Under the project “Environmental Human Rights for a Just Transition: Strengthened Local CSOs Transforming Climate Hotspots into Resilient Communities” (short: ENGAGE; NDICI CSO/2024/461-667) NETZ is seeking to hire two researchers for preparing two separate reports on best practices and challenges in policy implementation. The project is co-funded by the European Union.

The overall objective of the project is to strengthen civil society organisations (CSOs) to independently contribute to sustainable development, human rights, democracy and good governance in Bangladesh. The specific objective is to empower CSOs – particularly those led by women, youth and indigenous peoples – to advocate for a healthy, safe environment and a low-carbon, climate-resilient society. The project directly targets over 92,000 individuals across six climate-vulnerable districts in Bangladesh.

The purpose of this assignment is to generate evidence-based insights and contribute to policy learning. The researchers will be engaged to document, analyse and compile best practices and challenges related to policy implementation. These reports will be shared through regional and national policy dialogues as well as submitted to relevant ministries to address gaps in policy implementation.

The primary objective of this assignment is to review and analyse monitoring reports of CSOs, their experiences, document lessons learnt, best practices and identify challenges associated with policy implementation. All of this will be used to produce concise evidence-based reports – i.e., one report per researcher – with actionable recommendations.
